OnX

Dear Hiring Team at onX,

I am writing to express my interest in the Senior iOS Engineer position on the Fish team at onX. The combination of onX's mission, its Montana roots, and the opportunity to build high-reliability mobile software for people who depend on it outdoors strongly resonates with both my professional background and personal interests.

Professionally, I bring deep experience owning and evolving large-scale iOS applications with a strong emphasis on architecture, performance, reliability, and long-term maintainability. Over many years, I have led major iOS platforms end-to-end—partnering closely with product, design, and backend teams, mentoring engineers, and making high-judgment technical decisions that balance user experience with business impact. I am particularly drawn to environments where mobile performance, offline behavior, and user trust are non-negotiable, which aligns well with the Fish team's focus on mapping, GPS, and outdoor discovery.

On a personal level, the work onX is doing feels genuinely meaningful to me. I have loved the outdoors and fishing since childhood, when my father took my brothers and me out on the water. Western Montana has long been one of my favorite places, and onX's origins there are a big part of what draws me to the company. Today, I live next to a state park in Ohio, where I regularly hike wooded ravines and canoe the lake. I have taken my family camping since my children were babies—both backpacking and RVing—and have explored many national parks with my children and grandchildren. I also write outdoor adventure stories for kids and adults, often developing ideas while hiking, which has only reinforced my appreciation for tools that quietly and reliably support exploration.

What excites me most about this role is the chance to apply senior-level iOS leadership to a product that people truly depend on in real-world environments. Contributing to a team that values ownership, technical excellence, and a shared passion for the outdoors feels like a natural next step in my career.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my experience and perspective could contribute to the continued success of the Fish team at onX.

Sincerely,
Doug Sjoquist
