Speechify

Dear Speechify Team,

I'm excited to apply for the Senior iOS Engineer role at Speechify. My career has been focused on building and evolving iOS applications at scale while staying deeply hands-on—shipping production code, shaping architecture, and making product-driven technical decisions in fast-moving environments.

Most recently, as a Principal iOS Engineer at Walmart, I owned the architecture and delivery of the iOS checkout platform for a consumer app used by millions of daily users. That role required balancing speed with correctness, performance, and reliability, while collaborating closely with product and design partners to ship features that directly impacted users and the business. I've led complex refactors, maintained large and evolving architectures, and helped teams move quickly without sacrificing quality.

Speechify's mission strongly resonates with me. Making reading more accessible—and turning text into an experience people genuinely love—requires thoughtful product decisions, attention to detail, and a deep respect for users. I care deeply about building delightful, intuitive experiences, and I enjoy working in environments where engineers are trusted to make product decisions, move fast, and take ownership.

Technically, I bring extensive experience with Swift, modern iOS architectures, concurrency, CI/CD pipelines, and maintaining high-quality codebases over time. I'm comfortable working in SwiftUI, thinking in terms of SOLID design, and iterating quickly while keeping long-term maintainability in mind. I thrive in distributed teams, know when to engage and when to focus deeply, and value clear communication and execution.

I'd love the opportunity to contribute to Speechify's iOS app, help scale the platform to its next phase of growth, and build features that make a real difference in how people learn and consume information.

Thank you for your time and consideration.
